

I am Not a Blogger.....

Let me just say that I am not a blogger. You will not read daily posts about tubular shaped field mice my cat leaves on the back steps, or the unbelievable clearance prices on winter boots at the local department store.

What you will read are no-nonsense articles of substance I find are worth taking time to read. I follow a few newsletters, bloggers and pages around the internet and will take the time to read something if it will improve my life or give me knowledge on a topic I feel is important.

Other than that, I am much too busy to read fluffy articles, and so I won't share them either. Occasional fun, nonsense humor, the exception to my rule.....

Please bear with me while I learn how to navigate web pages....